The 1st Workshop on Control and Prevention of Infectious Diseases in Greater Mekong Sub-region

NGOS' ROLES and INFECTIOUS DISEASES CONTROL

Chinese Preventive Medicine Association

October 10-11, 2013 Kunming, China
Dear colleagues & friends,

We cordially welcome you to attend the 1st Workshop on Control and Prevention of Infectious Diseases in GMS on Oct 10-11 2013 in the “Spring City” – Kunming of Yunnan Province, China.

In the recent years, mobility of population is steeply increased due to more and more commercial trade. Cross-border migration not only led to economic prosperity, but also brought about increasing health risks. High prevalence of malaria, HIV/AIDS and bird flu in recent years proves that migration is an important cause of rapid spreading of infectious diseases across different countries. In order to face challenges together, CPMA and HPA would like to build a professional practical network and working mechanism on infectious diseases prevention and control in GMS through academic and experience exchanging and innovative discussions.

Professionals working for governments and NGOs from six countries, and several international organizations around the Greater Mekong Sub-region will attend the workshop. We also invite several main donor agencies to present their contribution and programming in the future.

Welcome to join us and work together for Health!

LOCAL INFORMATION

THE CITY
Kunming is the capital and largest city of Yunnan province in Southwest China. It is the political, economic, communications and cultural centre of Yunnan, and is the seat of the provincial government. It is also home to several universities, museums, galleries and other important economic, cultural, and educational institutions. The headquarters of many of Yunnan’s large businesses are in Kunming as well. Kunming has population of 6,432,212, including 3,583,429 in the built-up area made up of 4 urban and 1 suburban districts, and is located at the northern edge of the large Lake Dian, surrounded by temples and lake-and-limestone hill landscapes. Kunming has one of the mildest climates in China, characterised by short, cool dry winters with mild days and crisp nights, and long, warm and humid summers, but much cooler than the lowlands. The weather never gets very hot in summer; the temperature has exceeded 30 °C (86 °F) only on a handful of occasions.

Its economic importance derives from its geographical position. Positioned near the border with Southeastern Asian countries, Kunming serves as a transportation hub in Southwest China, linking by rail to Vietnam and by road to Myanmar and Laos. This positioning also makes it an important trade center in this region of the nation. Though having a nearly 2,400 year history, its modern prosperity dates only from 1910, when the railway from Hanoi was built. Kunming has been designated a special tourism center.
