Dr. Richard Niederman is a Senior Member of the Staff at The Forsyth Institute and Director, Forsyth Center for Evidence-Based Dentistry. His research, teaching, and clinical practice over the last 20 years all center on improving oral health equity.

He is the founding USA editor of the journal Evidence-Based Dentistry; the founding editor for the Global Centers for Evidence based dentistry. He is the co-author of the book Evidence-based Dentistry: Managing Information for Better Practice, and has published more than 100 articles evidence-based articles ranging from molecular biology to practice implementation trials and editorials, and provided training in evidence-based dentistry on 5 continents over the last 10 years. His current work is implementing evidence-based caries prevention programs in at-risk communities in the U.S. and Latin America.